Michigan's Construction Association of Choice Elects New Leadership

Contractors from across the state tapped to advance construction, build Michigan

DETROIT, Mich. — Darryl Massa, executive vice president of operations for Granger Construction in Lansing, has been elected 2017 chairman of the Associated General Contractors (AGC) of Michigan, the state's leading association for commercial construction firms, at its annual meeting today in Detroit.

"AGC of Michigan is dedicated to the values of skill, integrity and responsibility, and I look forward to continuing our organization's strong commitment to those values," said Darryl Massa. "Membership with AGC of Michigan has been a tremendous asset to Granger, and I am honored for the opportunity to do my part to further the organization's reputation as the association of choice for contractors across the state."

Mr. Massa, a graduate of Arizona State University, is a Registered Professional Engineer in the state of Michigan. Joining Granger in 1989, he currently serves as executive vice president of operations, bringing responsible leadership, promotion of positive team attitudes and a strong focus on customer satisfaction to advance Granger's success.

Serving alongside Mr. Massa as 2017 officers of the AGC of Michigan are vice chairman Bill Litz, vice president of Aristeo Construction in Detroit, and treasurer Jim Ebli, president of Gundlach Champion, Inc., in Iron Mountain.

The AGC of Michigan is a full-service construction trade association providing safety, education and training, legislative & regulatory advocacy, human resources, labor relations options, construction information and affinity programs. AGC members are dedicated to skill, integrity and responsibility. For more information, visit www.agcmichigan.org.
